

Chales Eze and Philip Idaewor, introducing As We See It, a programme which will present topics for debates, discussion and analysis that will educate segments of the African Society worldwide, expose Western and regional perspectives on African countries and the people. This is a vehicle through which constructive suggestions are targeted at and cascaded to opinion leaders as well as political, business and market leaders in the continent. The programme intends to build an African consciousness to be economically, political intelligent, independent and forward thinking.
